1. Write the word poem on the board. Ask your students, in small groups, to define it.

2. Write up their suggestions around the word. Hopefully, someone will have mentioned rhyme and metre, both features of more “traditional” or “older” poetry.

3. Display or hand out copies of the first verse on page 3 from Jonathan Swift. Ask students to decide how it should be read and then ask for some performances.

4. If students need some help, explain that there are four beats/stresses per line which should fall on the syllables in bold shown on page 3. Point out the rhyming pattern of AA, BB i.e. the first line rhymes with the second, and the third line rhymes with the fourth.

5. Tell students that they’re going to work with another poem which has the same metre and rhyming pattern. If you have a larger class, divide them into nine groups and make them responsible for a verse each. If your class is smaller, three groups responsible for three verses each. However, all students should have all nine verses even though they may be working on one (or three) at the moment. Give out the poem on pages 4-5.

6. Tell them that their task is to fill in the missing words so that the poem follows the AABB rhyming pattern. They can try to guess the missing word, but the most important thing is to find a word that rhymes even if it doesn’t make sense! Write up their suggestions, one for each gap.

7. Now tell them to focus again on their section of the poem. They should underline or highlight the four beats in each line and practise reading it - one line per person for a group of four, for example. They can use their mobiles or a dictionary for any problems with meaning or pronunciation.

8. Get the class to read out the poem in order (verse A to l) and then have a vote on which verse was best in two different categories - the best words in the gaps and the one that was read the best.
9. Ask them to agree on what the message of the poem is and then show them the video. Tell them that they have to watch without taking notes. They’ll hear their verses at the end and they should listen out for the missing words. (You can find the whole poem on pages 8-10)

10. Ask them to compare his delivery of the lines to their own. Better? Just different?

11. Now tell them that you’re going to ask them for their reactions. Display the questions on page 6 and discuss them, either as a whole group or in smaller groups, who then feed back to the class.

12. In the next class, tell students that they’re going to revisit some of the vocabulary from Look Up, but they’re going to look at second meanings or different collocations. Display the questions on page 7 for students to discuss.
Stella’s Birthday, March 13, 1719

Stella this day is thirty-four,
(We shan’t dispute a year or more)
However, Stella, be not troubled,
Although thy size and years are doubled.
A
So look up from your phone, shut down the ____________
Take in your surroundings, make the most of today
Just one real connection is all it can take
To show you the difference that being there can ____________

B
Be there in the moment, that she gives you the look
That you remember forever as when love ____________
The time she first held your hand, or first kissed your lips
The time you first disagreed but you still love her to ____________

C
The time you don't have to tell hundreds of what you've just done
Because you want to share this moment with just this ____________
The time you sell your computer, so you can buy a ring
For the girl of your dreams, who is now the real ____________

D
The time you want to start a family, and the moment ____________
You first hold your little girl, and get to fall in love again.
The time she keeps you up at night, and all you want is rest
And the time you wipe away the tears as your baby flees the ____________

E
The time your baby girl returns, with a boy for you to hold
And the time he calls you granddad and makes you feel real ____________
The time you've taken all you've made, just by giving life attention.
And how you're glad you didn't waste it, by looking down at some ____________

F
The time you hold your wife's hand, sit down beside her bed,
You tell her that you love her and lay a kiss upon her ____________
She then whispers to you quietly as her heart gives a final ____________
That she's lucky she got stopped by that lost boy in the street.
But none of these times ever happened, you never had any of this. When you're too busy looking down, you don't see the chances you ____________

So look up from your phone, shut down those displays
We have a final act existence, a set number of ____________
Don't waste your life getting caught in the net
As when the end comes nothing's worse than ____________

I'm guilty too of being part of this machine,
This digital world, we are heard but not ____________
Where we type as we talk, and we read as we chat
Where we spend hours together without making eye ____________

So don't give in to a life where you follow the ____________
Give people your love, don't give them your 'like'
Disconnect from the need to be heard and defined
Go out into the world, leave distractions ____________
• Do you agree that there’s a problem?

• How often do you turn your devices off?

• Do you share his negative view of social media?

• Do kids spend really less time outdoors nowadays, as he claims?

• Would you “like” this video?
• Who do you most look up to in your family?
• Why might you say to someone “Don’t hold your breath”?
• Describe the car or house of your dreams.
• Would you be able to keep up with your best friend on a bike?
• Have you ever felt a special connection with someone you’ve just met?
• Who’s the first person you look to when you need advice?
• Why might you tell someone to give it a rest?
• Are you good with your hands?
Look Up by Gary Turk

I have 422 friends, yet I am lonely.
I speak to all of them every day, yet none of them really know me.
The problem I have sits in the spaces between
Looking into their eyes, or at a name on a screen.

I took a step back and opened my eyes,
I looked around and realised,
That this media we call social is anything but
When we open our computers and it's our doors we shut

All this technology we have, it's just an illusion
Community companionship, a sense of inclusion
But when you step away from this device of delusion
You awaken to see a world of confusion.

A world where we're slaves to the technology we mastered
Where information gets sold by some rich greedy bastard
A world of self interest, self image and self promotion
Where we all share our best bits but, leave out the emotion.

We're at our most happy with an experience we share,
But is it the same if no-one is there?
Be there for your friends and they'll be there too,
But no-one will be if a group message will do.

We edit and exaggerate, crave adulation
We pretend not to notice the social isolation
We put our words into order and tint our lives a-glistening
We don't even know if anyone is listening

Being alone isn't a problem let me just emphasize
If you read a book, paint a picture, or do some exercise
You're being productive and present, not reserved and recluse
You're being awake and attentive and putting your time to good use
So when you're in public, and you start to feel alone
Put your hands behind your head, step away from the phone
You don't need to stare at the menu, or at your contact list
Just talk to one another, learn to co-exist.

I can't stand to hear the silence of a busy commuter train
When no one wants to talk for the fear of looking insane.
We're becoming unsocial, it no longer satisfies
To engage with one another, and look into someone's eyes.

We're surrounded by children, who since they were born,
Have watched us living like robots, who now think it's the norm.
It's not very likely you'll make world's greatest dad,
If you can't entertain a child without using an iPad.

When I was a child, I'd never be home
Be out with my friends, on our bikes we'd roam
I'd wear holes in my trainers, and graze up my knees
We'd build our own clubhouse, high up in the trees.

Now the park's so quiet, it gives me a chill
See no children outside and the swings hanging still.
There's no skipping, no hopscotch, no church and no steeple
We're a generation of idiots, smart phones and dumb people.

So look up from your phone, shut down the display
Take in your surroundings, make the most of today
Just one real connection is all it can take
To show you the difference that being there can make.

Be there in the moment, that she gives you the look
That you remember forever as when love overtook
The time she first held your hand, or first kissed your lips
The time you first disagreed but you still love her to bits.

The time you don't have to tell hundreds of what you've just done
Because you want to share this moment with just this one
The time you sell your computer, so you can buy a ring.
For the girl of your dreams, who is now the real thing.

The time you want to start a family, and the moment when
You first hold your little girl, and get to fall in love again.
The time she keeps you up at night, and all you want is rest
And the time you wipe away the tears as your baby flees the nest.

The time your baby girl returns, with a boy for you to hold
And the time he calls you granddad and makes you feel real old.

The time you've taken all you've made, just by giving life attention.
And how you're glad you didn't waste it, by looking down at some invention.

The time you hold your wife's hand, sit down beside her bed,
You tell her that you love her and lay a kiss upon her head.
She then whispers to you quietly as her heart gives a final beat
That she's lucky she got stopped by that lost boy in the street.

But none of these times ever happened, you never had any of this.
When you're too busy looking down, you don't see the chances you miss.

So look up from your phone, shut down those displays
We have a final act existence, a set number of days
Don't waste your life getting caught in the net,
As when the end comes nothing's worse than regret.

I'm guilty too of being part of this machine,
This digital world, we are heard but not seen.
Where we type as we talk, and we read as we chat
Where we spend hours together without making eye contact

So don't give into a life where you follow the hype
Give people your love, don't give them your 'like'
Disconnect from the need to be heard and defined
Go out into the world, leave distractions behind.

Look up from your phone. Shut down that display. Stop watching this video. Live life the real way.